Gender in Emergencies

Gender Based Violence: Male Engagement

September 19, 2018

Bidali Charles is a 30-year-old male from South Sudan. He travelled from Yei, South Sudan, in July 2016, escaping war and famine. When he arrived at Rhino Camp in August 2016, he was eventually settled, alongside his mother and three sisters, in Ariwa 1. Although he was attending school when he fled, Charles is now farming to earn a living.

In May 2017, Charles applied and was selected to be a GBV Preventer in his village, as a part of an initiative under ECHO OXFAM consortium funded by ECHO (European Union Civil Protection and Humanitarian Aid). GBV Preventers were trained on the forms of GBV, prevention and causes, effects of GBV on the individual and community, and reporting mechanisms. They were also trained on community sensitization techniques and good communication. Charles is one of 80 Preventers across the 3 settlements of Imvepi, Rhino, and Bidibidi.

A GBV Preventer is someone who carries awareness of GBV causes, prevention and effects into their community. A GBV Preventer also provides psychosocial support, and refers cases of GBV to appropriate parties, including medical, counseling, and legal facilities. GBV Preventers have stations in their respective villages. They work specific shifts at the station, but, as Charles says, their commitment carries over to their whole lives, continuing their advocacy at all times. The stations consist of a table, chairs, and GBV awareness materials. Communities are made aware of the stations and the fact that they are a safe place for survivors and perpetrators to come report any violence or abuse, with emphasis placed on the importance of reporting within 72 hours.

Charles says the GBV Preventers also conduct sensitizations in their community, especially during church services, where many people are gathered. Topics of discussion revolve around what GBV is, how it can be prevented, and the effect of GBV on the individual and community.

When a survivor comes to make a report, the first thing a GBV Preventer does is ask what happened. They also ask for consent to write down the story, for case management purposes. Next, the Preventer asks if they would like CARE to help them handle the case. This involves documenting the incident then referring the case to a CARE Case Worker who works with the survivor for emotional and physical healing and access to health, protection (Police) and legal services. If the perpetrator is known, especially if the parties involved are married, they are consulted with and offered couples counseling to mitigate future violence. Preventers are also allowed to make immediate referrals to health facilities and psychosocial counseling depending on the situation.

Charles says before GBV Preventers started their awareness campaigns, incidences of violence were very high in his community. “There was fighting, economic and emotional violence, and sexual violence. The borehole at night was especially bad, with people openly showering, fighting over water, public sex acts, and rape happening.” At the beginning, he says he would see 4 or 5 cases being reported each week. Now he only sees 1 or 2 cases per week. He said most of the violence that is still occurring is conflict between women, especially arguing over land boundaries. Most of this violence is verbal insults but can sometimes become physical.
While Charles’ community still has instances of GBV and other forms of violence, he believes it has decreased during his time as a Preventer. “People are safer and listening to us when we tell them not to be out after dark. CARE placed solar lights near our boreholes, which has helped lower GBV at that location. My community and I want to thank CARE for helping us prevent and report GBV. Soon it will not be here.”

Story Compiled and Written By: Brandi Murley CARE West Nile, Uganda
Mafi* is one of over 288,000 Congolese who fled the Democratic Republic of Congo to seek refuge in Uganda. She holds her tiny newborn in her arms as she puts her hand gently on her little tummy. What most people do not know is that part of her daughter reminds her of her worst days in the Democratic Republic of Congo. Shortly before fleeing from her home, four armed men raped her. One of them is the father of her child. Two days after giving birth to her, sitting in front of her small plastic sheeting tent on a hot and humid afternoon in Kyangwali refugee settlement, she recounts her horrific story.

They followed me into the forest. I went to get fire wood when four armed men suddenly attacked me. I screamed at the top of my lungs for help, but no one heard me, no one came. They pushed me to the ground and I immediately knew what their intention was. “Kill me”, I shouted to them, because I would have rather died than be raped by them. They did not listen to me. They took their turns, one after the other, until I fell unconscious from the pain.

I woke up in the hospital. The nurse told me that villagers found me in the woods, my body covered in blood, and brought me to the main street. Luckily, a police car drove by that moment and brought me to the hospital. The doctors were very nice and kept me there for a few weeks to recover. During the first few days, one of them told me that I was pregnant. My heart skipped a beat and I felt panic rush through my whole body. I remembered how I had lost three of my children due to sickness, unable to provide for them. I knew I had to keep the baby.

I felt like I was the only person in the world who had nobody. Armed men had killed my family members and burned our house when I was 5 years old. The pastor’s wife in our village took me in and raised me. I got married when I was 15 years old and decided to leave them, not wanting to be a burden anymore. But then rebels also killed my husband, and after losing my children I found myself alone once again.

I had to run. As soon as I was released from the hospital, I realized that I had to flee in order to save my life and that of my unborn child. In my village, I saw how many families walked towards Lake Albert, and I decided to join them. I only took the radio along with me from home because I knew I would need it to pay for the boat ride. It took me almost two weeks to get to Uganda. At one of the roadblocks, I met a former friend of my husband. He gave me some water and a little bit of money to survive the journey. About three months ago, I made it to Uganda.

I was helpless. Having left everything behind, I did not know how to raise my baby without any income and limited amount of assistance. But then I met Esther. She works with CARE and is an angel to me. She asked me questions, listened to my story and gave me hope again. She even took me to the hospital during my pregnancy and brought clothes for my baby after I gave birth to her. I never thought anyone could be so nice to me. There is no way for me to show her my appreciation. But I named my baby after her. Her name is Esther.

My child is innocent. She is not responsible for the sins of her father. My biggest wish is to be able to provide for her. Although life is better here in Uganda, I still do not know what the future will hold for us. But now, at least I have faith.

I am Akello Santa from Lamiyo Sub County in Agago District. I am proud to say that I am an “impact multiplier” in my community who graduated from the Learning For Change Women Leadership, Engaging Men and Boys and Psychosocial Support Training.

An unsafe relationship: I was in an abusive relationship, my husband was volatile, loud spoken and rude. Whenever he would come home, I was ready for the inevitable fight. I mentally prepared myself I always felt fighting back my best shot.

A new partnership: I was selected to attend CARE’s training and since then, I have changed a lot so I taught my husband what I learned and we started to work together. Our biggest strategy has been looking back and explore what caused the fight. Using the tools we were given in the training, now we engage in more mutually respectful discussions instead of quarrelling and fighting. He is my partner now, he supports me to reach out to our community. I am empowered and now I am so proud to be a leader in church and a woman leader in the clan.

Uncommon strengths: I am an excellent impact multiplier, I support couples in my community. My favorite couple started out by experiencing violence in their home. They were suspicious of one another and the relationship had no trust. The couple harvested food together from their garden, but would steal food from the house, sell it and then blame each other. The wife never felt safe at home, she felt misunderstood and nobody stood up for her. I sat with the couple and took them through a number of the sessions from the CARE trainings that I used in my own house. I reminded them both of the amazing qualities they had and wonderful family they had built. I walked them through creating a vision and set goals for their family. They are still together and happily married!

Learning for Change (L4C) Strengthening Women’s Voices is a regional program implemented by CARE Austria in cooperation with CARE country offices in Ethiopia, Uganda and Rwanda with advocacy components in Austria, at EU level and in the Great Lakes Region. L4C’s overall aim is the promotion of meaningful participation of women in decision making processes at different levels through transforming social norms and build local partners’ capacity to deliver gender transformative programming. L4C uses “impact multipliers” who are champions for gender equality in their communities and whose roles are to reach out deep and far in their communities to change gender norms and “multiply impact”.

UNFPA VISIT TO THE CARE UGANDA SRH/GBV KYANGWALI PROGRAM

On June 6, 2018, Alain Sibenaler, the UNFPA Uganda Country Representative, and Norah Nyeko, UNFPA Kyangwali Field Coordinator, visited CARE Uganda Sexual Reproductive and Gender Based Violence Health Program funded by UNFPA in the Kyangwali Refugee Settlement.

The CARE GBV Officer, Victoria Acen met the team and introduced them to the UNFPA CARE project volunteers. These volunteers are refugees in the Kyangwali Refugee Settlement.

Women empowerment: The UNFPA /CARE volunteers at Kyangwali Refugee settlement have their ears to the ground. They work to support and empower the women in the settlement– these volunteers are champions in their community.

Heroic survivors: One of the volunteers, who is also a survivor of Gender-Based Violence, expressed her appreciation to CARE and UNFPA for the support she has received.

Women’s Health Matters: The volunteers shared that there are a lot of gynecological issues that are not adequately addressed in the settlement. The CARE team suggested that sourcing a gynecologist would be of tremendous benefit to the women and girls living in the Kyangwali settlement.

SEXUAL REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH RIGHTS

The New Viola
CARE’s Viola the valiant and her invisible menstrual cup

VIOLA JACKLINE is a super hero. Not many people know this for sure, but everyone who has met her can see that she is different. She has many super powers, but her favorites are Resourcefulness, Courage, Resilience and Optimism. One day, VIOLA THE VALIANT had to leave her home in Yei, South Sudan, with her GRANDMOTHER, and BROTHERS. They walked for two weeks until they reached safety in the Imvepi Refugee Settlement. She and her GRANDMOTHER only carried two bed sheets, two sets of clothes and two saucepans.

The journey was long and VIOLA THE VALIANT fought many battles. She was attacked by ARMED MEN who sexually harassed the group. She witnessed so much death, protected her family from gunfire, and together, they survived extreme thirst and hunger. Finally, VIOLA THE VALIANT got her family to safety, the Ugandan border.

A Little While Later......

Haha! Look at her skirt!

A period stain!

I hate this. Why is this happening to me?

Many girls struggle with additional stress at school during their menstrual cycle. They are uncomfortable and it is hard to understand what is happening to their bodies. Boys tease girls when the girls school uniforms are stained by blood or if the outlines of bulky pads show through their skirts.
April 2018...

VIOLA is one of 100 women and girls selected to participate in a menstrual hygiene management and Ruby Cups pilot to introduce menstrual cups to the camp. The group is trained on personal hygiene, menstruation, menstrual hygiene management, and maintenance of the Ruby Cup. Trainings are conducted by TRAINERS who were selected from refugees and host communities within the camp.

Nancy, should I go back to cloth?

May 2018....

Something that goes inside your vagina sounds scary, but I know that it will be good for me and my friends.

This will help us so much! I would love to attend the training.

The first time Super Heroes use their talisman, it can be a challenge. Like WONDER WOMAN learning to use her Lasso of Truth. VIOLA THE VALIANT'S INVISIBLE RUBY CUP took a couple of tries. Super Heroes like VIOLA THE VALIANT know that it takes a village, we need each other to be the best heroes. VIOLA went to talk to her friend, NANCY.

My Invisible Ruby Cup works! It's so comfortable and makes me feel clean. And now that I know how to insert it, it is easy!

It's secret birth control!

It will break your virginity! No one will marry you now.

VIOLA'S family and neighbors have some doubts; the menstrual cup is an innovation in the refugee settlements. These perceptions are mostly a result of a lack of awareness about the menstruation process as it is seen as a taboo that should not be talked about.

Even then, VIOLA THE VALIANT shared her experience and what she has learnt with her family, and demonstrated how little water it takes to disinfect the RUBY CUP. And now her family and community support her.

I am not afraid to interact with boys and I'm more attentive in class now that I do not have to worry about leaks or stains. Many of my friends, neighbors, and school mates admire the cup and requested to be included as beneficiaries.

Thank you CARE and WoMena, I no longer have to look for money. I am comfortable, and I have...

During the training, VIOLA said she learned many new things including her own reproductive health anatomy, menstruation cycle length, and the steps of hand washing. In fact, the first time Viola had even been taught these subjects was when WoMena and CARE came for this project.

VIOLA THE VALIANT is doing the best she can to be the best super hero she can be, not only for her community but also for herself. VIOLA'S self-esteem and confidence have improved. She plays football, actively participates in youth meetings, and can walk long distances for food ration without having to worry about leaking and odor from her menstrual cloth. She is fights to support her peers to help understand and manage their menstruation more confidently.
The shy leader:
I am Lakot Teddy from Lamiyo Sub County, Polcami Parish in Agago District. In spite of the fact that I am the youth leader at the Sub County, I am generally a shy and soft spoken person and this has always made me fearful and generally crowd shy. Expressing myself has always been challenging and I only took up the leadership position then because I failed to speak up and express my refusal when we were elected.

Seeds of confidence:
After the trainings from CARE, my confidence was built. I am now able to express myself freely without fear. I am confident and I am sure I have the ability and capacity to train other people in the villages. I approach issues more confidently and have been able to intervene in supporting individuals address conflicts in their community. I talk to many young people about being obedient and respectful. I encourage them to share ideas with one another.

Lasting Change:
The CARE trainings have empowered women in Leadership and I am an example. Right now, there are Local Council elections in my community and women are being encouraged to contend for positions.

“My belief is that we are all able and can be good leaders and I intend to vie for the position within the Local Council. This will ensure that I can influence the system better and contribute to making change in my Community.” Lakot Teddy.

The East Central and Southern Africa (ECSA) Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights Workshop in Nairobi, Kenya

On 21st – 22nd June 2018, CARE Uganda represented by Mike Mukirane, the Initiative Manager (SRMH Specialist), took part in The East Central and Southern Africa (ECSA) Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights Workshop in Nairobi, Kenya. The workshop was hosted by the CARE USA Supporting Access to Family Planning and Post Abortion Care (SAFPAC) team and ECSA Regional Management Unit.

Focus
CARE participants from across the ECSA region came together to garner support for SRHR portfolio development and build consensus around strategies and the opportunities to institutionalize SRHR through programming.

Who was in the room?
CARE regional, sub-regional, and country office staff from all fifteen ECSA countries. Young African Leaders Initiative (YALI), African Development Bank (ADB), United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) and Global Affairs Canada (GAC) were also in attendance.

Sharing the landscape
The landscape assessment brought out key areas that CARE can leverage, to strengthen SRHR programming in ECSA. These included leadership, scope, investment, structures and emergency.

“We envision working with women and especially young people to ensure they have self-efficacy, knowledge and access to SRH services across the humanitarian and development continuum in the Great Lakes”.

Next Steps
1. SRHR dialogue and education, and organizing training on Value Clarification for Attitude Transformation (VCAT) within CARE by the end of the year 2018.
2. Ensure that CARE joins and actively participates in all SRHR Working group meeting from the national level to the sub-national level.

RESILIENCE
My Dreams, my destiny

In spite of the fact that I am the youth leader at the Sub County, I am generally a shy and soft spoken person and this has always made me fearful and generally crowd shy. CARE Uganda in partnership with CARE Denmark launched a new programme ‘Strengthening Resilience and Inclusive Governance Programme’. The initiative funded by Danida will be implemented in collaboration with four Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) – Advocates Coalition for Development and Environment (ACODE), Environmental Alert (EA), Joint Effort to Save the Environment (JESE) and Rural Initiative for Community Empowerment (RICE West Nile) together with the local government for four years (2018 – 2021). The programme will support the most vulnerable groups of women, girls and youth in refugee and host communities. This will not only protect and conserve the environment but improve food security, enhance household income and strengthen resilience. People will be empowered with alternative options when hit by disasters related to climate change. The Programme will be implemented in Arua, Kyenjojo and Kyegegwa Districts.

CARE Uganda with CARE USA’s Food and Nutrition Security team, started a project She Feeds the World (SftW), funded by Pepsi-Cola, which is aimed at improving the food and nutrition security of poor rural households, with a strong emphasis on women small-scale producers. The project will be implemented in Kyenjojo and Kyegegwa Districts in South Western Uganda. This is a 3-year project that will run from 15, June 2018 to 31, May 2021. The project will target supporting 120,000 (70% women/girls and 30% men) direct and 370,000 (70% women/girls and 30% men) indirect beneficiaries. The overall goal of She Feeds the World is to improve food and nutrition security and reduce vulnerability of poor rural households in Kyenjojo and Kyegegwa.

The CO won a grant for Eco-DRR funded by CARE Netherlands focusing on strengthening resilience to disasters (including climate risk related disasters) of 160,000 vulnerable persons in 5 districts of Eastern Aswa Catchment in Northern Uganda (Otuke, Alebtong, Abim, Agago and Kotido districts, by supporting development and scaling up of Eco-DRR actions and citizen-based monitoring of disaster and climate resilient policies and practices.

WOMEN’S ECONOMIC EMPOWERMENT

Celebrating 20 years of the VSLA

CARE is a leader on financial inclusion for poor women and girls in Uganda. In 1998, CARE Uganda established its first Village Savings and Loan Associations (VSLAs), and has since trained and mentored over 28,971 groups across all regions of Uganda.

The current VSLA membership is 809,367. Of those, 568,059 are women. The cumulative savings for all active VSLA groups is greater than 52 Billion Ugandan Shillings. The model’s sustainability is evidenced by the 95% group continuation rate, despite CARE Uganda’s active involvement being limited to between 12 to 24 months. The Impact of the VSLA model is undeniable.

Additionally, CARE has developed a youth-pathways apprenticeship approach, through which more than 2,625 youths, throughout all parts of eastern and western Uganda, have been trained in CARE’s financial inclusion model.

The metal lock box that has transformed lives
Household transformation in the Oluo Hill Village

Transformed Lives
Tiko Florence and Opima Richard are one of the many families who have benefited from the Village Savings and loans association. The couple have been members of Abasaru Community Savings and Credit Group (CSCG) in Oluo hill Village, Lamila Parish in Kijomoro Sub County since 2009.

“After joining VSLA, life has never been the same again. For the nine years we have been members of the group, we have been able to construct a permanent house, and moved from the grass thatched mud and wattle house. We have been able to pay school fees for the children and the eldest now is in S4. And we have boosted our honey selling business” said Richard.

Female entrepreneurship.
“The trainings in business skills have helped me to manage the business better, I can now keep simple records and estimate the profits I earn from the business” added Florence.

Their group was selected to be strengthened under the PROFIRA project, and it has enhanced the benefits of the couple as members of the VSLA group. After the training in financial education, their group opened an account with post bank, and Florence, as a member, also opened an individual account.

“I never thought of having a bank account,” Florence said, “I still had the traditional beliefs that bank accounts can only be opened and used by rich people and people formally employed by the government. After the CARE trainer explained to us the benefits of having a bank account and the requirements for opening the account, I decided to open a savings account with Post Bank.”

Florence uses the account to receive payments from her customers that she sells the honey to in the capital, Kampala.

Our Future
“We want to continue saving in both the VSLA and the bank account, be able to pay school fees for the children up to university and finish the house”

Florence’s testimony is a good example of how additional strengthening of the VSLA groups through trainings and partnerships with institutions like banks maximizes member’s benefits from the VSLA.

CLIMATE ACTION
PfR/CARE Uganda at the Annual Global Community Based Adaptation12 Conference.

“Local experiences driving climate actions”.

On June 11th – 14th, 2018 CARE Uganda, represented by Anguparu Monica, Omega David Ogwang and four partner staff from the Partners for Resilience Program, participated at the annual global Community Based Adaptation Conference (CBA12). The event was hosted by the International Institute for Environment and Development (IIED) in Lilongwe, Malawi.
The Biggest Hit
We showcased our PfR/CARE poster in the highly attended marketplace which attracted 36 posters pitched by different organizations. Our PfR/CARE poster was a hit!

“Our poster showed that we brought the community voice to government attention, which demonstrated the inclusiveness of indigenous knowledge in the adaptation of our work.”

See details of posters uploaded in the Link below: https://www.flickr.com/photos/iied/sets/72157696067797971/with/28797584338/

Moving Forward
• Focus on relevant and effective technologies for adaptation.
• Continue to promote gender transformative approaches for adaptation to a larger scale.
• Create evidence to influence decision makers regarding the need to fund climate adaptation work.
• Conduct cross-generational documentation conduct dialogues with communities to reflect on the status of wetlands 30 years back and 30 years ahead.

Walk Uganda in One Hour for Climate Change
Mabira Forest, Buikwe, District
Hosted by Walkers Association of Uganda in collaboration Ministry of Water and Environment

CARE Uganda, under PfR participated in “Walk Uganda in one hour for climate change” which was held on 28th/07/2018. The theme of the walk was “A sustainable future for Uganda forests”. It was a 10km walk through Mabira forest reserve in Buikwe district. The objectives of the Walk were;

TO advocate for ending practices which degrades the forest, to inspire people to walk in order to keep fit, to plant trees in the designated areas in Mabira forest, and to educate the local population on the danger of climate change.

It is an honor to congratulate Fred Turyamureba for another 15 years of dedication to CARE International Uganda. Fred has made 2 rounds of 15 with CARE International Uganda making it 30 wonderful years.

“Long Live CARE for the job well done and long live Uganda for hosting CARE” Fred Turyamureba.

CASE Study: Increasing Influence as an Emerging Leader

“Thank you CARE for providing me with the space and time (including other organization resources) to participate in the coaching program”

Emerging leaders face the challenge of developing and refining their leadership skills before they are in formal leadership authority.

In this coaching program, the emerging leader (me) develop perspective on how leaders influence and motivate the people they work with, the people in other areas of the organization and the external people they engaged with to advance new initiatives and achieve positive change related to the organization’s mission.
